Here and There

WITH the winter rains approaching there is one highway maintenance project that should be undertaken at once in the interest of public safety. That is the graveling of the shoulders on the narrow paving leading out of Hope on the road to Washington.

Bobcats Resolved to Stop Unbeaten Hot Springs Team

Trojans Bringing Most Powerful Squad Here Friday Night

PAIR OF BROTHERS Hope Team Drilled to Meet Hot Springs' Longinotti Stars

Determined to make a fine showing against Coach Mervin Perry's Hot Springs Trojans here Friday night, the Hope High School gridsters completed three days of hard scrimmage late Wednesday in which they sought to fashion a defense against the Trojan running attack and a possible aerial raid.

Stopping Paul Longinotti and his brother Louie, is the big task before the Bobcats. Paul, a mite of a quarterback, is the ace of the backfield. He is a classy back-field runner and a good passer and a veteran field general.

Louie, the kid brother, packs dynamite in his ability at blocking. He was rated by Howard Jones, Southern California coach, as the best "high school blocker I have ever seen."

Lovell, at fullback, is captain of the team and was rated an all-state man last season. He is a star performer in backing up the line. Chappell, the other backfield man, is fast and shifty.

In the line, Coach Perry has an all-state end in Greene. Several other members of the team are veterans of last year's hardest to date.

Coach Foy Hammons Thursday predicted the game would be harder fought than the Fordyce battle here last week.

The revamped line, with more power and weight, is prepared to drive at top speed. The backfield has been pushed hard the past three days, ironing out flaws that cropped up in the nervous first quarter of the Redbug game.

With additional drilling at calling signals, will be at quarterback. Spears has been run at fullback the past three days and more than likely will start at that position Friday night, with Madison and Jack Turner at halfback positions.

It appeared doubtful Thursday whether Hillecock would play. He is suffering with injuries. Hobbs, Moore and Hamilton were battered and bruised in scrimmage Wednesday, but are expected to be in shape by starting time Friday night.

The balance of the team is in good condition.

Fair Weather
With the forecast of fair weather for Friday, one of the largest crowds of the season is expected. Advance tickets went on sale at five places in the downtown section Thursday morning. All but five of the box seats on the Hope side of the field were reported at noon as "sold out."

Hot Springs fans will come here in a delegation of several hundred, it was reported from that city. A 60-piece band will accompany the team. Students and adults holding season tickets are urged to pass on the right side of the turnstiles when entering the field in order to save as much time as possible in punching tickets.

Tickets will be no advance in price. Tickets may be purchased at Moreland's drugstore, Jack's news stand, Hope Confectionery, Green's Confectionery and Webb's news stand at the regular price of 50 cents.

Anti-Italian Riot as Slavs Blame Italy for Death

But Most of Yugo-Slavia Remains Quiet as Funeral Begins

WAR SCARE DYING

Assassination, However, Upsets European Treaty Relations

Copyright Associated Press

PARIS, France.—(P)—Under a shield of great secrecy Queen Marie of Yugo-Slavia came to Paris Thursday for a reunion with her son, the boy-king, Peter the Second.

The queen and her son met at the Yugo-Slavian legation in Paris. They will leave Paris Thursday night for Belgrade, where the parliament is to approve the proclamation making Peter king.

Meanwhile, a 14-year-old girl, wounded in the shooting, died, bringing the toll at the assassination spot to six.

Two suspects arrested as accomplices of Petrus Kalcman, assassin of King Alexander, apprehended near the Swiss border, were held by French police.

A third suspect, Sylvester Chalmy, escaped after being captured by police.

Passports carried by the two suspects held by police showed they were natives of Italian towns which were in Austrian territory before the war.

Yugo-Slavia was outwardly calm Thursday, while the war scares raised by the assassinations appeared to be subsiding.

In Yugo-Slavia, late Thursday, however, anti-Italian riots broke out after a meeting at which speakers alleged that all attempts against Alexander's life had been financed and prepared in Italy.

By Associated Press
Europe waited apprehensively to learn the nationality of Petrus Kalcman, the man who killed Alexander and French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou.

The original belief that he was of Great birth had eased fear that war might flare in the Balkans as a result of Alexander's death, but investigations Wednesday showed his passport was forged, making his nationality dubious.

Marselles—The Yugoslav destroyer Dubrovnik bore Alexander's body home as President Albert Lebrun of France accompanied Queen Marie to Paris and cabinet ministers rode with her.

Paris—Authorities in Paris and elsewhere sought the trail of an international band of terrorists believed to have chosen Kalcman by lot and sent him to Marselles on his savage mission. Yugoslavs were rounded up for questioning. Heavy guards were ready to protect the boy king when he arrived from London.

Passport Forged
Paris—Czechoslovak authorities announced their investigations proved definitely that the Czech passport found on Kalcman's bruised, bloody body was forged.

Belgrade—No positive identification of Kalcman had been made nor could he be linked with the famed revolutionary family of Kalcman, as Yugo-Slavia watched anxiously for signs of civil strife.

Rome—A 21-day period of slide mourning was decreed as Premier Mussolini repeated his offer for an understanding with Yugo-Slavia, traditionally Italy's foe.

London—British statesmen eyed the continent for possible political repercussions of the assassinations while the Londoners cheered young King Peter, pulled out of bed at his English school to be told his father was dead and he was king. He left for Paris to join his mother.

Berlin—Wilhelmstrasse sources made no secret of the fact that Alexander's death was a staggering blow to Germany's hopes for increasing friendship with Yugo-Slavia.

Geneva—Youray Kravitch, leader of the Croatian Pransy party who has been living in Geneva since the party was suppressed, said he was not impressed at the king's assassination and disavowed any connection with it.

NEWPORT, Ark.—(P)—Mrs. Buford Nelson, 21, was drowned in White river 13 miles from here Thursday.

Her husband, Buford Nelson, of Cordell, Okla., told Sheriff A. G. Albright that he and his wife were in about gassing gars, when the boat struck a snag and sank. Mrs. Nelson's body had not been recovered up to noon Thursday.

She was the daughter of Mrs. Stells Wilson, Route Four, Russellville, and had married Nelson about a year ago. She formerly taught school near Russellville.

The party arrived here Wednesday from Russellville for a fishing trip.

Woman and 4 Children Die, 2 Missing as Building Falls

HALIFAX, N. S.—(P)—The bodies of one woman and four children were recovered Thursday in the smoldering ruins of a three-story building wrecked by a mysterious explosion.

Two persons escaped, one being blown across the street by the force of the blast.

Champ Cards Are Hailed in St. Louis

Rubber-Armed Dean Boys Leave on Barnstorming Tour

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(P)—St. Louis Wednesday acclaimed the world champion Cardinals as the city's heroes. A parade over streets strewn with paper and debris of a celebration which began Tuesday afternoon and extended through most of the night, was the city's tribute to the conquerors of Detroit's Tigers.

Near the front of the line of parading automobiles, just behind the car reserved for Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann and club officials, rode triumphantly the brothers Dean—Dizzy, exuberant, bizarre; Paul, having just as good a time in his more quiet manner.

Dizzy wore a white African sun helmet and carried a toy rubber tiger. On the long tail, as Dizzy pointed out to admirers, were four knots, each representing a Dear victory over the American League champions.

"Glad to be home, with the world series in the bag," Dizzy said. "This hat," as he called the helmet, "is to wear when I go fishing down in Deauville, Florida," which used to be Bradenton.

"Wanta banana?" a loud-voiced youth shouted to Joe Medwick, who Tuesday was the target for fruit, vegetables and glassware from the left field bleachers at Navin Field, Detroit.

Like her famous husband, Mrs. Jerome Herman Dean, enjoyed the excitement immensely.

"Everybody was so nice," she said. "At first, Paul seemed to think I rather silly, but before the parade was over he was the worst cut-up of the lot."

The rubber-armed Deans hurried to their hotel, gathered up their belongings and boarded an airplane for Oklahoma City to pitch Wednesday night in an exhibition game. They arrived safely.

Adjournment Near for Circuit Court

Recesses to Monday When Sentences Will Be Pronounced

With the docket virtually cleared, Hempstead circuit court at Washington recessed Thursday noon until Monday when Judge Dexter Bush will pronounce sentence on a half dozen defendants who pleaded guilty to criminal charges.

One case was heard Thursday morning, a civil suit brought by C. G. Coffee against William Scroggins in which the plaintiff sought a settlement involving a small amount of farm property.

Another civil case is set for Monday in which the Joe Thomason estate is suing Hope Basket factory for $30,000 damages. The case resulted from the death of Mr. Thomason who was struck by lightning and killed while working at the factory several months ago.

Criminal cases numbering over 20, postponed from one session to another, were dismissed during the current session of court. Among the charges dropped was the June Brashear case in which he was accused as a participant in the $24,000 holdup of the First National Bank here two years ago.

Brashear, however, had faced juries in two previous trials in which each jury failed to agree.

Bandit Car Stolen From Kilgore, Tex.

Prescott Cafe Robbers Stole Machine From Oil Town Sept. 28

An automobile used by two bandits who Monday night robbed Ebb's cafe at Prescott, was traced Thursday to Kilgore, Texas. The car was stolen there September 28, police said.

Nevada county officers, after "jumping" the bandits as they left Prescott, chased them to Hope where local officers joined in.

The chase here continued through town and to Hope Basket factory where the search ran into a dead-end as the robbers abandoned their car and vanished.

Identity of one of the bandits was believed established through a letter found in the car. Officers refused to disclose any names.

14 Good Reasons for Birth Registry

Affords Proof of Citizenship and Right to Inheritance

LITTLE ROCK.—"There are 14 reasons why a baby should have a birth certificate," said Dr. W. B. Grayson, state health officer and director of the first Arkansas "Register Your Baby" campaign, which is being conducted by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Board of Health.

The federal Bureau of the Census and the Arkansas Emergency Relief Administration.

"Chief among these reasons is the proof of citizenship, paternity, and legitimacy, the right to inherit property, as evidence of the legal age to marry, and as evidence in the enforcement of law relating to education and to child labor," Dr. Grayson continued.

On October 12, registration cards will be sent to every family in Arkansas from the Bureau of the Census in Washington, requesting certain data on babies born to Arkansas parents in the past twelve months. All that the parents have to do, if the card is applicable, is to fill in the blanks and drop the card in the nearest mailbox. No postage required.

The cards will be returned from the Bureau of the Census to the Bureau of Vital Statistics in Little Rock, where they will be checked against existing records. Even though parents are sure that their babies have been registered, they should fill out the cards, because there may have been an error of entry and at some later date the child may need a certified copy of birth certificate.

In case one of the cards returned to Little Rock is found not to be a maternal card, it will be sent to the Department of Justice. If the card is found to be a maternal card, it will be sent to the Department of Justice in Washington, which will have the card on file.

Counsel Holds Up Hauptmann Case

New York Grants Extradition—But Habeas Hearing Postponed

NEW YORK.—(P)—Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer Thursday set next Monday for the hearing on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus sought by counsel for Bruno Richard Hauptmann to prevent his removal to New Jersey to face murder charges in the Lindbergh kidnapping case.

Justice Hammer denied a request by Attorney General David T. Welcutt of New Jersey for an immediate hearing on the application.

Extradition Granted
NEW YORK.—(P)—Extradition of Bruno Hauptmann to New Jersey to stand trial for the abduction-murder of the Lindbergh baby was ordered at Albany late Wednesday by Gov. Herbert Lehman.

A vigorous defense fight against extradition is in prospect for Thursday. As Governor Lehman signed the papers Defense Attorney James N. Fawcett was flying to New York to prepare for the court test.

"We'll fight extradition to the end," the attorney said.

Fawcett said he would apply Thursday in a Bronx court for a writ of habeas corpus.

If granted, extradition would be held in abeyance until a court could hear Hauptmann's refutation of charges that he stole the first-born of the flying Lindberghs from his Huguenot home the night of March 1, 1932.

Fawcett left Albany after conferring for an hour with Governor Lehman and the executive's attorney, Charles Poletti.

He did not ask for a hearing before the governor on the extradition request.

"I prefer to carry the case," he said, "direct to the courts."

Department of Justice Ends
Havels had the extradition been authorized than the Department of Justice in Washington announced its withdrawal from the case.

Inasmuch as no federal indictment is being sought, and because an extradition indictment in New York and a murder indictment in New Jersey have been returned, the department decided on the withdrawal. It will continue to lend aid to both states.

The federal agents have been in the case since the manhunt for the kidnappers started. They kept a thorough and detailed watch for the Lindbergh ransom bills—the trail of

Federal Agents Are Assigned to Stoll Kidnaping

Department of Justice Men Concentrated in Louisville

IS SEIZED AT HOME

Young Wife of "Richest Family" Beaten and Kidnaped

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Assistant Attorney General William Stanley told reporters Thursday that federal agents were being concentrated in Louisville in the search for Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, society leader who was kidnaped late Wednesday.

Mrs. Stoll was seized at her home and spirited away by a lone man who tied up the maid before leaving.

The kidnaper has demanded $50,000 ransom. The Stoll family is regarded as one of the richest families in Kentucky.

Taken at Home

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—(P)—Mrs. Berry V. Stoll, young society leader and wife of a wealthy oil man was seized from her fashionable home late Wednesday by a kidnaper who left a note containing a threat and a demand for $50,000 ransom.

Beaten by the abductor who gained entrance to the house on a pretext and left her maid bound and gagged Mrs. Stoll was spirited away in an automobile.

There was blood on the floor of the home and Mrs. Fowler Willett, 24, maid, who was found bound and gagged, told Mrs. Stoll that the man had beaten Mrs. Stoll in a struggle with her and at the point of a pistol had bound the maid to a chair. The hands of Mrs. Stoll, a slender brunette, were then bound with tape.

Mr. Stoll discovered the maid when he returned home shortly after 5 p. m. and later issued a statement addressed to the kidnaper.

"Berry Stoll just found the note regarding the ransom and arrangements are being made accordingly."

He declined to make its contents public, but it was learned that in addition to demanding money, it contained a threat that William A. Stoll, president of the Stoll Refining Company, was "next on the list." He is a brother of Berry Stoll, the vice president, and is president of the Louisville Board of Trade.

Discovers Abductor
"When I came in," said Mr. Stoll, "I immediately untied the maid from her chair. I got from her a description of the man. She said he was very white of face and that his lips were unusually red. I think he must be a former convict. I then ran to the Clarke (James Clarke Jr.) home and telephoned the police. I also called William Speed, my wife's father, and others."

"When I came back home I found the note on a bed upstairs and it contained the information about the ransom. Apparently the kidnappers have me confused with my father, C. C. Stoll. The note kept referring to him. Yet the kidnappers must know me. Maybe it was someone in the army with me, because the maid told me the man declared to her: 'If Berry comes in, I'll kill him.'"

Mrs. Willett, the maid, whose husband is caretaker for the Stoll estate, was on the verge of hysterics. She said the kidnaper gained entrance to the home by pretending he had come there to repair the telephone.

"He hadn't to repair the house but a minute before he drew a pistol and pointed it at Mrs. Stoll and me," she added. "The first thing he did was to tie me in a chair and stick a gag in

Suspect Sore Tonsils in Child Rheumatism

Although the specific cause of the type of rheumatism that attacks children is not known, physicians have long been convinced that infected tonsils have much to do with it.

The basis for this belief is such discovery as the fact that the death rate in children suffering from rheumatism is nearly 50 per cent less where the tonsils have been removed at the time of the first attack. Furthermore, 59 per cent of the rheumatic children had suffered from tonsillitis or sore throat previous to their first attacks of the rheumatic condition.

Recurrent attacks, however, were not less frequent in those children who had had their tonsils removed.

Some of the most common signs of rheumatism in children are extreme pallor, susceptibility to fatigue, loss of appetite, nose bleed and vague pains throughout the body. This does not mean that every child who has one of these symptoms is rheumatic, but it does mean that these symptoms are suspicious and should bring about a study of the child to determine their cause.

The onset of rheumatic disease is insidious. It begins with the minor symptoms that have been mentioned, but comes eventually to the serious inflammation of the joints and of the heart, that sometimes results fatally.

The worst result of rheumatic inflammation in a child is a completed involvement of the heart, described by doctors as pancarditis, because it affects the whole heart.

Rheumatism in a child is usually accompanied also by fever and by painful joints. Some of the cases have the type of twitching known as St. Vitus' dance, or chorea. The pains that used to be called growing pains frequently represent an inflammation of the muscles, so that a better name for the condition is muscular rheumatism.

Rheumatic fever rarely occurs in very young children, but is fairly frequent in the period between 5 and 15 years of age. The most common ages are 7 for boys, and 10 for girls.

As an example of the fatal character of this condition, one specialist reports the records of 54 children who were watched over a period of ten years. The first three years after the initial attack is the period of greatest hazard for rheumatic children.

In this period 49 per cent of the children had one or more recurrences of the symptoms, and by the end of ten years 32 per cent had died.

A BOOK A DAY

Sees Presidents as 'Just Average Men'—Here's Amazing Book by One Who Served Nine of Them

Away back in the Harrison administration, Irwin H. Hoover went to the White House to help install electric lights. He stayed on as a sort of repair man, joined the White House staff, and became, finally, chief usher—a position he held until his death in the spring of 1933.

Thus Mr. Hoover got an extraordinarily intimate view of every president from Harrison to Franklin Roosevelt, and in "Forty-two Years in the White House" he has told what he saw. It makes a amazingly interesting book. He goes over being awed by presidents a long time ago. Of all the presidents he saw—Harrison, Cleveland, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding, Coolidge and Hoover—he says that only two were unusual men: Roosevelt (the first) and Wilson. The rest were "just average men."

Coolidge didn't mean it, according to this writer, when he didn't choose to run. He expected to be drafted, and was violently disappointed when the draft failed to come. Incidentally, Coolidge is given credit for having the most virulent temper of any president like Hoover ever saw.

Wilson never recovered appreciably after his stroke, says Hoover. During his last year in office he was just a shell, physically and mentally, of his former self—and Mrs. Wilson practically ran the country.

I could go on for columns, citing similar revelations. Some of them are momentous and some of them are unimportant, but all are interesting. Here's a book you don't want to miss. Published by the Houghton Mifflin Co., it sells for $3.50.

The Claw of the Forgotten Murder

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

CHARLES MORDEN, reporter for The Blade, telephoned his newspaper an exclusive story about FRANK H. CATHAY, of Riverview, recently had prominent, brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and accompanied by a pretty young woman who calls herself MARY BRIGGS, high-biker.

Next day it is learned that the man was an impostor. The real Cathay demanded damages and a later publisher of The Blade, contended that "something is fishy."

Over the telephone next day KENNEDY, city editor, learns that Morden has been murdered.

NOW ON ON WITH THE STORY

disclosed them in three days. "Well," Kenney remarked, "Griff can tell us more about it. It's good—the best criminologist in the county today. When you're talking with him, try and get some information out of him about a man by the name of Thomas, the murderer of Edward Shillingby, a private detective, Philip Lamson, the gangster they call 'Clutch' (died)—is held under arrest. The story goes that Decker was frightened because he was a witness. He went to Griff and Griff has buried him somewhere. He says he'll produce Decker at the time of trial, but that's all he'll say. There's a story in it if we could get Griff to talk."

"He won't," Bleeker said. "There's no harm in trying," Kenney insisted.

He left the room with quick, impatient strides.

DAN BLEEKER, seated at his desk, got Ethel West on the telephone and said, "Get me Sidney Griff, the criminologist. Tell him that I want to see him. He's a matter of major importance. I probably won't have all the facts necessary to make a presentation of the case until after dinner, tonight. I'd like to see him this evening."

The telephone rang. Bleeker mapped the receiver from its rest and heard Ethel West say, "Mr. Griff will see you at 6:30 tonight if that is convenient."

"Quite," Bleeker said. "Now get me the editor of The Riverview Chronicle, in Riverview. Rush the call."

He dropped the receiver back into position, but held his hand on it and when, within a matter of a minute and a half, the telephone rang, he snapped the receiver to his ear with a quick motion.

"Hello," he said. "Is this Bleeker of The Riverview Chronicle? This is Dan Bleeker of The Blade. We sent a man up to look over your clippings on Frank B. Cathay. A chap named Morden. Did you give him any information?"

Bleeker listened for a short time, then nodded his head. "Now," he said, "I want you to do something for me. There may be a big story in it. I want you to find out for me where Frank B. Cathay was yesterday afternoon. In the morning if possible, but in the afternoon if certain. I want to know every move he made. You can go to any necessary expense and send the bill to me. He's what are you certain? Check that, will you?"

"You call me back just as soon as you find out. If I'm not here you can leave my information with Ethel West, my secretary."

BLEEKER dropped the receiver back into position, left his private office and pounded through the outer office with swift, nervous strides. He turned to the right in the corridor, walked down a long, musty passageway, with a stock room occupying the space on the left, a photographer's room with a series of dark rooms on the right. He passed a room from which came the clack of pounding typewriters driven at high speed, and pushed his way into Dick Kenney's private office.

"I telephoned Beckley of The Riverview Chronicle," he said. "I'm a reporter. He told me that Cathay was taken very suddenly and seriously ill yesterday morning and has been in bed ever since. I told him to verify it."

"You think Cathay and Morden had a conference somewhere?" asked Kenney.

"I'm not thinking anything just yet," Bleeker told him. "I'm getting facts. I have an appointment for 8:30 tonight with Sidney Griff. What have you found out from headquarters? Anything?"

"It's Morden all right," Kenney said grimly.

The telephone on Kenney's desk thrilled into sound. Kenney frowned and pulled the receiver to his ear.

"Kenney speaking," he said mechanically, then nodded to Bleeker. "It's for you," he said.

Bleeker took the receiver, said "Hello, this is Bleeker," and then nodded to Kenney.

"This is long distance," he said. "Riverview calling. They're coming in now. . . . Hello, Beckley, yes. . . . you're certain. . . . I see no clues. Thanks ever so much. It makes a good story for you at that and anyway. Huh. . . . yes, we'll run something on it down here. Telephone us a complete report."

He handed the telephone back to Kenney. Kenney replaced the receiver, dropped the telephone into position on the desk, and raised his eyebrows at Bleeker. "What did you find out?" he asked.

"I," said Bleeker, "sent that boy to his death."

CHAPTER VII

THERE was no answer from Bleeker, publisher of The Blade but an abrupt, negative nod of the head. Kenney, the city editor, pressed the receiver support down into place, then raised it again.

"Miss West," he went on. "It's Dick Kenney. Will you get me Bill Osborne on the line right away? Yes, I'll hold the line. . . . hello, Bill. This is Kenney. Nixon has just telephoned in from headquarters. He's picked up a radio call. The police have found a body out on the outskirts of town. Sanborns and 1920 streets. It's a sublimation that's gone sour. There are only a few houses out there. The police think the body is that of Charles Morden."

"Take Sam Lane with you. Go down to headquarters and get on the job. Contact the homicide squad. Tell them that Morden was working on an important matter and that we're going to move heaven and earth to get the thing cleaned up. You can pass the word around that The Blade is going to expect results. You find out all the facts and then report back, and I'll give you a line on the stuff Morden was working on. You pick up Fred Nixon and the three of you drop everything else to get this thing cleaned up. Understand?"

He nodded his head and dropped the receiver back into place. "roor devil," he said.

Bleeker made a flat, pounded it slowly on the desk.

"I," he said slowly, "sent that boy to his death. I didn't know it and he didn't know it, but that's what it amounted to."

"Can we get any clues from what he was working on?" Kenney asked.

"The body was found 20 minutes ago. He'd been dead 24 hours. The bulk of his head was smashed. He'd been taken out there and dumped."

"He telephoned yesterday," Bleeker said, "that he was working on a big story. He had to play around with some woman to cultivate it. He didn't handle this thing, Kenney. But as many men on the job as this necessary, Morden was one of our boys. He was humped off. We're going to avenge his murder. More than that, it's an insult to the paper. We're going to clean this thing up, if we have to move heaven and earth. I'm going to see Sidney Griff, the criminologist."

KENNEY whistled.

"There's more to this case," Bleeker went on, "than appears on the surface."

"Of course there is," Kenney said. "You know what it is and so do I. Morden was getting dope on Frank Cathay."

Bleeker shook his head slowly. "Men are killed, Kenney," he said, "for gain, for vengeance, for fear, for jealousy. We can't figure where there was any revenge, gain or jealousy. Therefore, we jump at the conclusion it's fear and immediate. His figure Cathay was mixed up in it. But Cathay is a prominent citizen. If there are any skeletons in his closet they'd be buried as deeply as a casual investigation wouldn't have

Couldn't Spare Him

A small boy stood in the entrance to the cobbler's shop watching the man at work.

"What do you repair boots with, mister?" he suddenly asked with a smile.

"Hide," replied the cobbler sharply.

"E-r-r, eh?" asked the boy.

"I said hide," replied the cobbler impatiently.

"What for?" the boy insisted, somewhat surprised.

"Hide! The cow's outside," sighed the man.

"Don't care if it is. Who's afraid of a cow, anyway?" said the youngster defiantly.—Boston Globe.

Roosevelt Thinks Prices Should Rise

Still Higher Level Needed to Balance Assets and Liabilities

WASHINGTON.—(AP).—President Roosevelt made it plain Wednesday that he feels prices should go higher and immediately there was speculation as to whether further currency experimentation was planned to bring this about.

The only word forthcoming from the White House was that price developments probably would be a determining factor in future monetary steps.

The price range aimed at by Mr. Roosevelt was not specifically defined. The president was represented as feeling, however, that a further advance was necessary to bring the assets of the nation's balance sheet well ahead of its liabilities.

Once reasonably satisfactory prices are attained, Mr. Roosevelt hopes to stabilize to eliminate violent fluctuations of the past. Determined to have the price increase, he is also opposed to a runaway upthill.

The president feels that while assets now somewhat overbalance the debt burden—where 1½ years ago the reverse was true—that even this is admittedly a matter for argument. Back in the boom days of 1929, for example, the nation's assets as a whole were from $75,000,000,000 to $150,000,000,000 above the liabilities.

Mr. Roosevelt, however, has not indicated that he has any intention of returning to the inflated values of the late 1920's and even the balance in the supposedly halcyon days of 1926 does not thoroughly meet with his favor.

The price relation for some commodities in 1926 might be satisfactory, but the figure for other years would be better for other products, in his opinion. It was pointed out that the definition of parity price in the agricultural adjustment act is the price relationship of farm commodities to other goods in the 1909-14 period.

Ginning 2,000 Bales Ahead of Last Year

Cotton ginnings from the 1934 crop in Hempstead county as of October 1 were 10,061 bales, compared with 8,500 bales on the same date a year ago, according to W. H. Eetter, Jr., Washington, special agent of the Department of Commerce.

Kansas A. O. U. W. Meets Thursday

Local Lodge Will Hold Session at 7:30 at Eyks Hall

There will be a reorganization meeting of the Hope Lodge A-34, A. O. U. W. of Kansas, Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the Elks Hall.

The A. O. U. W. of Kansas, a fraternal insurance society, doing business on a legal reserve basis, is one of the oldest of its kind. This organization has been in business for better than 57 years and is known throughout its territory for its safety as an insurance organization and its fair and quick dealing with its members.

Thursday night the local organization will have its first meeting and at that time the policies of the lodge will be explained, along with the election of officers and appointment of committees.

The A. O. U. W. of Kansas operating in Arkansas, has established a series of district offices over the state. This has been done in order that the membership might have closer touch with the home office. The office of this district is in Texarkana, and in charge of Fitzhugh Lee, district manager. The work in Hope is being handled at this time by Joe B. Hargis, who is a local deputy for the order. The A. O. U. W. of Kansas has never had any connection with the former A. O. U. W. of Arkansas.

Fitzhugh Lee, district manager, will be present to outline plans of operation for the local organization.

"Thoughts are really things, and it's not nearly so much what we say that has effect, as what we think and do. O thought of peace and good-will, persistently held, will clear up any atmosphere, however dense, it is like the rays of the sun—silent and powerful."

my mouth. Then he beat Mrs. Stoll and made off with her to his car."

Story of Beating
The maid told investigators Mrs. Stoll was bleeding as she was dragged out of the house. Police found bloodstains in the home.

Willett, the caretaker, was away at the time. A Great Dane dog owned by the Stolls apparently gave the kidnaper no trouble. Police started looking for a negro employe on the estate, who usually leaves at about the time the kidnapping occurred. It was thought he might be able to provide some clues.
James Clarke, who lives near the Stoll home, told reporters he saw a large sedan bearing four men in a lane near the Stoll estate shortly after 3 in the afternoon. One of the men asked them for directions to the Wilcox home, which is near by. Other residents of the neighborhood reported they had seen cars parked in nearby lanes recently.

Telephone wires in the Stoll home were cut by the kidnaper, but the connection had been re-established early Wednesday night and the wife was being kept clear for a possible call from the man.

U. S. Incorporation Law Is Next Move

Senate Probers Play Holding Firms and Corporate Trusts

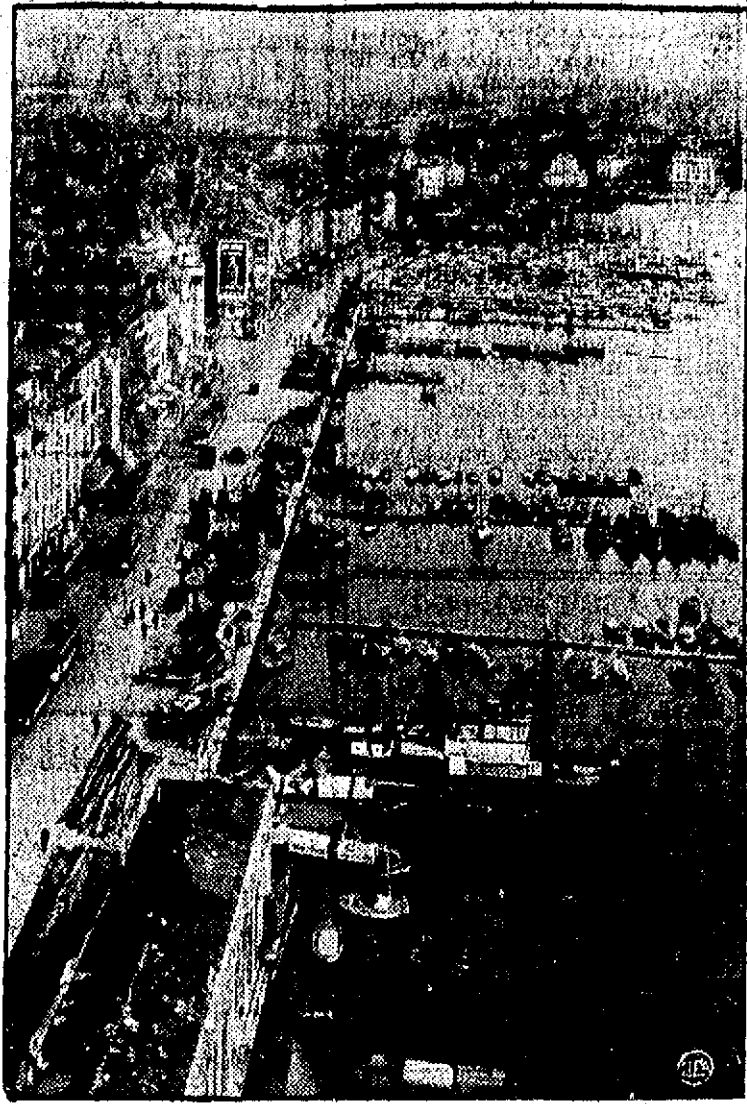

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The senate banking committee, in a sixth report on the long Wall Street investigation, Wednesday hit at investment trusts and holding companies as instruments for concentrating control of wealth in the hands of a few.

As a remedy, it proposed strict federal regulation—extending the control of the government still further over the money centers.

Citing some activities of J. P. Morgan & Company; Dillon, Read and Company; the Insulls; the Van Swerlengens and others in substantiation of its criticism, the committee said the proper corrective might be an act requiring all such corporations to have a federal charter.

"The cure for our corporate ailments—circumvention of the law, investment-trust and holding companies abuses, and interlocking directorates, may lie in a national incorporation act," said the report, written under the direc-

The committee held that both investment trusts and holding companies were equally liable for accelerating the concentration of the control of wealth. The vast resources of Morgan and Company were cited.

Lion Oil to Begin Advertising Drive

Arkansas Company Opens 60-Day Campaign in 60 Cities

The Lion Oil Sales company, one of Arkansas' major oil marketing organizations, will start an extensive newspaper campaign in the early part of October, advertising Lion Knix-Knox gasoline.

The campaign is scheduled for 60 days and will run in 60 newspapers throughout the territory served by Lion. Papers in Arkansas, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana will be used.

The theme of the campaign is novel and interesting in that a series of photographs are being used to illustrate the advertisements, all of which were modeled by Arkansas college students. These students made excellent models and their adaptability and cooperation provided interesting, realistic photographs portraying some of the trivial worries of youth.

The Lion Oil Sales company owns and operates over 500 service stations in Arkansas, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee. During the past year, considerable modernizing has been done at the Lion plant in order to manufacture a greater variety of petroleum products, thereby greatly increasing the Lion market.

"Lion's program of expansion is adding materially to the wealth of the state," said Colonel T. H. Burton, president of the Lion Oil Sales company and the Lion Oil Refining company. "From a few service stations and dealers in 1930, Lion has grown so that it now markets its products through over 500 bulk plants and service stations in a large part of five of the southern states."

The tank cars of the Lion Oil Refining company are daily moving from the refinery serving Lion petroleum products to customers and dealers in 24 states of the United States in Canada and to the seaboards where much is exported to foreign countries. Most

A two hour grand program will be given at the Guernsey High School auditorium Saturday night, October 12. This entertainment is sponsored by the school athletic association. Price of tickets will be 50, 75 and 1.00.

The curtain will rise promptly at 8 o'clock with the first act of a play taken from Tennyson's immortal "Enchiridion," and written by the tenth year English class.

As you recall, Tennyson's story suggests the most ancient "theme" of poetry, that is, the fli-ckers of human life as contrasted to the continuity of nature. With this in mind, the young playwrights chose as a title for their play, "Can a Person Love Twice?" The drama, as it stands, and with a tragedy, and is highly romantic, playing up to the idea that friendship might be stronger than love.

Every one is cordially invited to

Insull Co. 'Forgot' to Show Writeoff

Squeezed Out Watered Stock, But Didn't Tell Investors

CHICAGO.—(AP)—The story of efforts to omit a $34,954,153 write-off from the statements of Corporation Securities Company of Chicago was unfolded Wednesday in the mail fraud trial of Samuel Insull and 16 co-defendants.

A letter inquiring into the legal justification for the omission was added to the head of prosecution evidence while Van Lamont, former comptroller of Insull, Stuart & Co., occupied the witness stand.

Lamont also related that stock purchased by the concern Insull had founded immediately prior to the financial debacle of 1929 at a cost of $3,500,000 was written up on the books at a value of $15,000,000, and that stock bought at $13,000,000 was written up to a value of $30,000,000.

Lamont related that the corporation's desire to avoid embarrassing reference to it in identifying a letter written by Clarence T. Mac Neill, a defendant and secretary of Insull, Stuart & Co., to W. J. Parker of the law firm of Schuyler, Weinfield and Hennessy in January of 1930.

In the letter Mac Neill reminded Parker that the latter had advised that in all statements of the Corporation Securities Company the write-off should be mentioned.

"This procedure," the letter said, "while undoubtedly being proper from a legal standpoint, means continually gringing up a sore spot."

The state relief organization civil works in North Carolina gave employment to 967,545 persons during the fiscal year of 1933-34.

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

Sandwiching in a Good Time.

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

The gang's all together again after the summer separation. These to-the-death bridge tournaments, interrupted by vacations and the distractions of outdoor life, are going full-tilt and almost every night a few couples drop in to sit until bedtime.

It's lots of fun unless you're one of those hostesses who take being a hostess too seriously. The better way is to be nonchalant like the ladies in the advertisement whom nothing can ever agitate. If you're the hospitable sort who likes to serve refreshments, keep your shelves well-stocked with lots of the right kind of canned things and don't try to be elaborate in your sandwich-making.

I have found that certain hot and quite simple sandwiches go well with coffee while the evenings are chilly, though my shrimp and egg rolls are the crown of the evening to most of my guests.

For enough rolls to serve eight once around, you must have:

One cup cooked shrimp, 3 hard cooked eggs, 2-3 cup mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon prepared mustard, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1/2 teaspoon salt.

Clean shrimp and cut fine. Add eggs, chopped fine, and remainder of ingredients. Mix well and spread between finger rolls that have been split and buttered.

Hot Baked Bean Sandwich

Two cups plain baked beans, 3 tablespoons chopped onion, 1 green pepper chopped, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 cups canned tomatoes, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 10 slices toasted bread.

Cook chopped onion and green pepper in butter until soft but not brown. Add tomatoes which have been rubbed through a strainer to remove seeds, then salt, and simmer until thick, about one-half hour. Serve hot baked beans between two slices of toast with tomato sauce poured over.

These sandwiches are good made with toasted rye bread. You might have several kinds of bread at hand and let each guest choose and toast his own.

Smothered Ham Sandwiches

Five slices bread, 5 slices cooked ham, 1 egg white, 1/2 cup mayonnaise, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard.

"Cleopatra" was shown for the first time at the preview last Friday night to a good crowd who all acclaimed it a mighty fine picture and truly another greater show season hit.

Not Dependable

Boss—"When you called up my wife and told her I would be detained at the office, and would not be home until very late, what did she say?"

Sieno—"She said: 'Can I depend on that?'—Vancouver Province.

Beat white of egg until stiff. Slowly beat in mayonnaise and mustard. Lay slices of ham on slices of bread. Cover with mayonnaise mixture. Bake in very hot oven (475 degrees F.) for four minutes until puffed and brown. Serve at once.

Cherry and Nut Sandwiches

These are interesting little sweet sandwiches made with crackers. You can pass them with the last cup of coffee if you like to finish with a bit of sweet.

Two tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons maple syrup, 1/2 cup confectioner's sugar, few grains salt, dusting of cinnamon, 5 tablespoons maraschino cherries, 4 tablespoons chopped pecan meats, crackers.

Cream butter, add maple syrup and gradually add sugar, salt and cinnamon. Then add maraschino cherries cut in small pieces and broken nut meats. If the mixture is too thick to spread, moisten with cream. Spread between crisp crackers and serve.

AAA Will Protect Tenants in 1935

Policy Is Announced to Guide Landowners This Autumn

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Farm Administration will take steps designed to assure the tenant farmer equitable treatment under next year's cotton adjustment program.

It was learned Wednesday that the administration shortly will call to the attention of landowners provisions in the readjustment contracts specifically protecting tenants.

These include pledges to maintain as far as possible the normal number of tenants and other employees, to permit all tenants to occupy their quarters, rent free, during the next season, and to make pro rate among tenants whatever acreage reduction is determined upon, to avoid throwing any out of employment.

It was said authoritatively that the motive for this step was twofold. First, to bring the provisions clearly into notice at about the time farmer owners and share croppers are beginning their annual negotiations toward arrangements for next season, and second to make clear that the administration is going to insist upon complete fulfillment of those contract provisions.

AAA officials have taken the position that no serious labor disturbance has been occasioned by cotton acreage reduction and their notice to landlords will carry no accusation that the latter have not been observing contract regulations.

The decision to issue the notice was described in one source as merely precautionary.

San Francisco.—(AP)—An attack on the NRA as it applies to workers was launched before the American Federation of Labor convention here Wednesday.

Robert J. Watt, a Massachusetts delegate, charged the collective bargaining clause of the recovery act had been "used against the workers themselves." He asserted employers, including Henry Ford, had been permitted to interpret the act as they pleased.

Matthew Woll of New York, a federation vice president, said the recovery act virtually required employers to organize among themselves but said there was no comparable requirement that labor join in a majority movement for its own benefit.

Labor, said Woll, must obtain the same right to organize as capital, or labor will be enslaved under the NRA instead of made free.

Decisions of the National Labor Relations Board were criticized by Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union.

"If we are to have a vital application of the NRA to the right of organized labor unions to bargain with employers," said Howard, "the federation will have to get a proper interpretation of the recovery act."

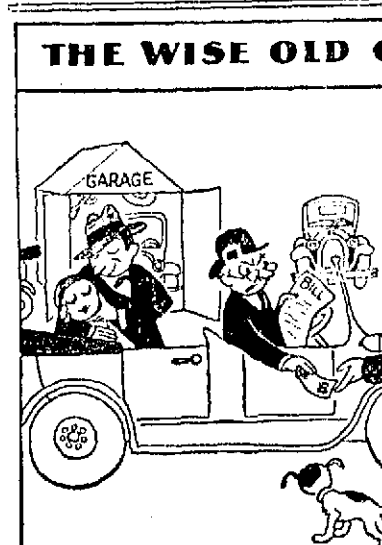

After hearing the criticisms, the convention adopted its Executive Council's report on unemployment, which placed the total number of unemployed at about 10,000,000.

Very Much Improved After Taking Cardui

"I have suffered a great deal from cramping," writes Mrs. W. A. Sewell, Sr., of Waco, Texas. "I would chill and have to go to bed for about three days at a time. I would have a dull, tired, sleepy feeling. A friend told me to try Cardui, thinking it would help me—and it did. I am very much improved and do not spend the time in bed. I certainly can recommend Cardui to other sufferers."

Thousands of women testify Cardui benefited them. If it does not benefit YOU, consult a physician.
